HIGH-YIELD SCIENCE STRATEGIES for REACHING ELs Follow-Up

REMOTE via ZOOM

Engaging learners in reading, writing, and discussing using science academic language is fundamental for high-quality science instruction. In this workshop, which builds on the High-Yield Science Strategies for Reaching ELs, Dr. Fleenor models and explains how to shape lessons around key vocabulary and structure activities to engage students in reading, writing, and discussing using academic science language.

In this 3-hour workshop, participants will:

- Map out key vocabulary in lessons
- Practice facilitating a structured conversation using the QSSSA strategy
- Engage in structured reading and writing activities
- Practice using new scaffolds to promote speaking, reading, listening and writing for ELs

Who should attend:

- Previous attendees of Dr. Fleenor's High-Yield Science Strategies workshops
- Science teachers of ELs, bilingual learners, and English-only learners
- ESL teachers
- Campus/district administrators
- Instructional coaches and specialists
- District science and ESL coordinators

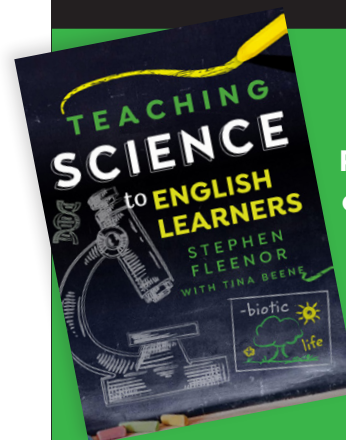

- PRESENTED BY -

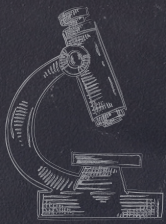

DR. STEPHEN
FLEENOR
joined Seidlitz Education in 2018 as an expert in science instruction. With a PhD in Developmental Neurobiology from Oxford and extensive experience teaching ELs, economically disadvantaged students, and other special-needs students in San Antonio, Dr. Fleenor has bridged the demands of science curriculum with the needs of academic language learners. In addition to training and instructional coaching, Dr. Fleenor has written blogs, book chapters, and has even authored his own science fiction novel.
