A Framework for K-5

HOUSTON, TEXAS

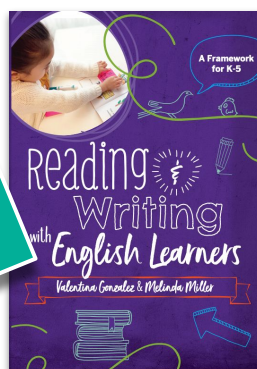

This training offers educators a user-friendly guide and framework for supporting English learners in reading and writing classrooms. Authors Valentina Gonzalez and Dr. Melinda Miller will lead participants in exploring the components of Reading and Writing Workshop with a special eye for increasing the effectiveness of instructional methods and quality of instruction to serve multilingual students.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

- K-5 Classroom Teachers
- ESL Teachers
- Reading and Writing Instructional Coaches
- District Leaders

Participants will receive a copy of the popular book, *Reading &
Writing with English Learners!*

- Presented by -

Valentina Gonzalez with her 21 years in public education, has served as a classroom teacher, an ESL coteacher and pull-out teacher, a district ESL facilitator, and a district professional development specialist for teachers of English learners. Through these roles she supported students and educators and coached teachers on sheltered instruction and ESL strategies. Her personal experience as an immigrant from Yugoslavia and language learner fuels her desire to advocate for English learners and support teachers and administrators in their work with ELs.

Dr. Melinda Miller, a full professor, has been teaching literacy at Sam Houston State University since 2001. She currently teaches at the undergraduate, masters, and doctoral levels. She previously taught public school in the classroom and as a Reading Specialist for 11 years. After completing an undergraduate degree in Education at the University of Texas, she received her Master's degree in Reading from Sam Houston State University and her PhD in Curriculum and Instruction from Texas A&M University. She has published over 40 articles and presented internationally. She has been an Educational Consultant with Seidlitz since January of 2015.
