

Engaging Secondary English Learners with Writing: From Sentences to Paragraphs

March 25 & 26 4pm-5:30pm (CST)
or
March 27 8:30am-11:30am (CST)

ONLINE via ZOOM

- Presented by -

Natalia Heckman, M.Ed.

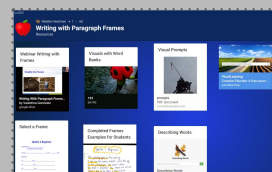

This 3-hour session will supply secondary ELA/ELD/ESL teachers with tools to build better writers. We will examine writing practices through the lens of language acquisition theory, explore engaging activities that will boost competence and confidence of emergent writers, and focus on sentence and paragraph skills that students need to move forward on end-of-year examinations. Participants will walk away with activities to implement during daily ELA instruction, small-group remediation, or as a part of the summer school curriculum. Most importantly, we will have fun!

Who should attend?

- ELA/ ESL/ ESOL teachers
- ELA content specialists
- ESL program specialists
- ELD program specialists

Trained in Russia as a translator, Natalia never thought about becoming a teacher, but after her first year in the classroom, she knew that teaching was her calling and her mission. Natalia has taught English and ESOL classes, assisted teachers as an ELA and Social Studies Instructional Coach, and served as an ESL/Bilingual program specialist. She currently pursues her passion for linguistics and education as an educational consultant with Seidlitz Education. Natalia holds a bachelor's degree in literature from the University of Houston at Clear Lake and a master's degree in school administration from Lamar University.
