

SMALL MOVES Big Gains

THURSDAY
FEB 2, 2023
8:30AM - 3:30PM

Teacher habits

THAT HELP KIDS TO

- ✓ Talk More
- ✓ Think More
- ✓ Achieve More

Small Moves, Big Gains offers educators a straightforward path toward increasing student outcomes. The small moves in this training are brief, actionable, and require little to no preparation. Each one is a high-yield strategy that benefits all types of learners and can be applied across content areas. Nancy Motley gives practical steps for turning the moves into automatic habits - showing how to do them, why they are significant, and possible variations. Along the way, she shares the science behind habit formation, as well as many examples from real classrooms. Get ready for a day full of simulations, conversations, and novel activities.

Participants will leave the conference equipped to:

- Increase the quality of student to student conversations
- Extend students' thinking beyond the quick and obvious
- Teach in the moment with greater intentionality
- Transform a small move into an automatic habit
- Bring joy and energy back into the classroom

Who should attend:

- K-12 Content-Area Teachers (New teachers especially!)
- Teachers of Emergent Bilingual students
- Instructional Coaches/Specialists
- School Administrators

All attendees will receive a copy of the new book, Small Moves, Big Gains

Nancy Motley is a Senior Educational Consultant for Seidlitz Education, specializing in literacy and second language acquisition strategies. For the past decade her work with teachers, schools, and districts has centered around increasing students' success with straight-forward and actionable techniques. She is widely known for her "user-friendly" approach.

Nancy is the author of Talk, Read, Talk, Write: A practical routine for learning in all content areas (K-12), 1st and 2nd editions. This effective resource and teaching routine is transforming classrooms across the nation into literacy dense learning environments. She is also the co-author of The Diverse Learner Flip Book, and has developed hundreds of customized professional development modules focused on meeting the needs of multilingual learners, magnifying student engagement, and increasing reading, writing, and communication skills for all students. Nancy's previous educational roles included: classroom teacher, reading specialist, intervention program coordinator, professional development instructor, and curriculum developer.

Because of her dynamic approach to teaching and learning, she was awarded the Alief Independent School District's Teacher of the Year Award in 2003. Her passion for and commitment to education is still just as evident today as she trains and coaches teachers, collaborates with leadership, and creates new educational resources.

She holds a Masters of Arts in Counseling that she uses to help teachers build strong, authentic connections with their students. Nancy lives in Houston, Texas with her husband and two wonderful daughters.
