- PRESENTED BY -

Seidlitz Education's Teaching Math to ELs Conference is a unique opportunity to learn from three instructional experts as they share specific strategies on how to meet the needs of English learners struggling in the math classroom. Discover the many ways for students to develop academic language and foster critical thinking skills that are specific to mathematics.

PARTICIPANTS LEAVE THE CONFERENCE EQUIPPED TO

- Incorporate math process standards while boosting students' math mindsets through differentiated math strategies
- Position emergent bilinguals to succeed in math through equitable participation in their learning communities
- Facilitate academic discourse around mathematical thinking to promote student interaction when solving word problems

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

- K-12 Math Teachers
- Math Curriculum Specialists/ Instructional Coaches
- Administrators/School leaders
- Bilingual/ESL Directors/Coordinators

All attendees will receive a copy of the new book, Teaching Math to ELs plus Solved: A Teacher's Guide to Making Word Problems Comprehensible, and Juan José: You are Especial!

ADRIAN MENDOZA began his journey in education teaching English learners (adults and children) in Monterrey, Mexico, more than 12 years ago, where he discovered his passion for education. When he moved to Texas to teach 5th Grade in a bilingual classroom, he understood the importance of the language and the culture in order to inspire students to become contributing members of our society. Adrian previously worked as an Instructional Math Coach in San Marcos CISD, and has a MS in Educational Leadership from Texas State University. His commitment leads him to innovate and his present action research project is about the importance of Building Mathematical Growth Mindset Communities. Adrian has provided Professional Development to educators for more than 5 years in the areas of Bilingual Education, Math, Technology, and Student Engagement, working with teachers and parents in the US, Mexico, and Costa Rica.

DR. JIM EWING is experienced at helping teachers and administrators meet the needs of emergent and bilingual students, and he does it with passion and compassion. He is a motivating, knowledgeable consultant with a diverse background in teaching, coaching, and research. After 25 years as a teacher, including eight as an administrator, Jim earned his PhD in education at Syracuse University. At Stephen F. Austin State University, Jim's ability to engage his students and coach them into being better teachers was recognized with the Teaching Excellence Award and he received early promotion to Associate Professor and tenure. Speaking Spanish, he coached teachers in Ecuador on motivating their math students. Jim has gained national recognition at ASCD, NCTM, and ESSA conferences and his keynote addresses have been given widely around the country.

DIANE KUE is an educational author, speaker and consultant who has presented at the campus, district, regional, state, and national level in pedagogical approaches to acquiring content-specific language while engaging in conceptual understanding. She was a classroom teacher for ten years before transitioning to curriculum writer, classroom instructional support, and principal for summer school programs designed specifically for elementary students new to the country. She is the author of Solved: A Teacher's Guide to Making Word Problems Comprehensible and a contributing author to Teaching Math to ELs.
